President Jennifer

With some of the funding for local and international projects underway we have been looking a bit at the "income" side of the ledger. It's a wonderful feeling to be able to sponsor individual endeavours and community projects, making a difference to many people, one of the best parts of Rotary. The hard part is fundraising the money to pay for it, and East Coast Bays Rotary pulls together as a great team for this.

We are indebted to our Golf Tournament Committee for their hard work, putting together our major fundraiser. Without the regatta it is even more important that the tournament goes well.

It takes a lot of smaller fundraisers to come close to the amount raised at the Golf Tournament.

The International Committee has two fundraisers for the first half of next year in the embryonic stages of development, but with the potential to be reasonable earners and hopefully embracing a wider non-Rotarian audience to part with some money for a good cause. However, we are a small committee and we will need some help to make these work. You may receive a gentle tap on the shoulder, we will welcome your support.

At the Cluster meeting this morning the question of fundraising came up. In the last two to three months there have been a plethora of smaller events - movies, plays, quizzes etc. Some have been very successful, some not quite as hoped as several have had to be cancelled through lack of interest. It was felt that one of the problems was too much competition at the same time and one of the solutions may be to combine efforts at times. Several clubs joining together for the same movie night for example, filling a larger theatre and then splitting the proceeds. Something to think about.

The Next Generation Rotary -NRG - North Shore club needs some support in the way of keen ballgoers for their charity ball on 13 October. They are a club of about 12-14 members and the ball is an ambitious endeavour to raise money for Youthline.

Youthline has to fundraise $700,000 a year to provide the 24/7 assistance that it offers young people in strife and NRG is hoping to help them in that quest. The ball is very soon and even though they have a great location - Royal NZ Yacht Squadron - and a great swing band lined up, they have not sold quite enough tickets to break even. Spread the word among friends and families and colleagues. This is a group that needs encouragement and a great charity to support. There is a discount now for purchases for a table for ten - down to the cost of nine tickets. If I don't succeed in finding the attachment for the ball, here is the link to their website with all the information : <https://www.nrgnorthshore.com/charity-ball>

Monica told us about their trip to Tangiers. Booking.com was brilliant and they hired a car and had three days to get to Fez by New Year's Eve. The main roads were good but back roads looked as though they had been paved once. The car's GPS kit auto-corrected but sent them further away from civilisation. They backtracked and found where they had made the mistake and managed to reach their goal at dusk on New Year's Eve. It just goes to prove all algorithms are not created equal.

As part of Rotary International's Alumni re-connect week (1st to 8th October) our club is hosting a meeting to support this cause on Monday 8th October.

Our Club has arranged a very special guest speaker for this event, namely Graham Prentice, and his topic will be "The digital divide". I have included some background information on Graham below.

This meeting will also be an excellent opportunity to bring along guests and any prospective new members interested in hearing more about the work that Rotary does both locally and on the international stage. So please let Steve Jenkins and Gary know if you are bringing any guests.

Obviously if you know any of our club's Alumni, please do invite them along.
