Good Thursday Breakfast Meeting

Random Acts of Kindness

Rotarians were asked to carry out a random act of kindness over the previous week. Each act then went into a draw to receive a reward for their kindness. The prizes, drawn by Sharyn, went to Bridget (followed a mother around the supermarket before paying for her groceries), Cara (made morning tea for Pleasant Point School staff), Ian Moore (bought bread for a stranger at the supermarket), Ryan (helped out at the Trotting Club's race day), Paul Studholme (sorry we didn't get what your act of kindness was), Rebecca (made a cake for someone), Francisca (sorry we didn't get what your act of kindness was) John Gregan (left $20 under the window wiper of a stranger's car at the supermarket).

Sergeant Peter's Session

Dylan Murray (lame joke), Michael Horne (has already been up for hours this morning), Cara Gregan (reckless cycling), Francisca (8th place in javelin event, South Island High School Athletics competition), anyone who had a hot cross bun before Good Friday, Rebecca Aitchison (declined an offer to sit at top table this morning), anyone celebrating a birthday, anyone who didn't carry out a random act of kindness.

Faberge Egg

A Faberge egg is one of the jewelled eggs made by Peter Carl Faberge and his company between 1885 and 1917.

The most famous are those made for the Russian Tsars Alexander III and Nicholas II. They were Easter gifts for their wives and mothers, and are called the Imperial Faberge eggs.

The house of Faberge made about 50 eggs, of which 43 have survived. Two more were planned for Easter 1918 but were not delivered due to the Russian Revolution.
