ABANDONED HUSBANDS BREWING LTD

Craig Robertson, head brewer was absent Thursday evening, Ryan Luckman, Matt Simonsen, Dylan Murray, Kieran Henshaw make up this dynamic team of young men looking to make a name for themselves (and a few dollars) with their range of special brews. It is obvious they enjoy each others company and the challenge of brewing a good beer.

The name of their company came about after the wives were out in the community and left the husbands at home with the children. The men all chipped in for a brewing set-up kit and they first produced an IPA which was so good.

From humble beginnings they now have a larger kit which includes a hot water cylinder and a 200 litre fermenter. This means larger brews and now they also have 400 litres of cider.

Next step is to find outlets to sell their product and to find a new name to register, all suggestions welcome.

A number of sample grains and hops were passed around and the evening concluded with a beer tasting.

All the best guys, we will watch your progress with interest.
