

We need a government that will unleash Queensland's potential.

Get back to basics in schools

Education standards in Queensland are going backwards – especially in NAPLAN – the national test for literacy and numeracy.

The Palaszczuk Government is failing a generation of kids by shifting focus away from core learning skills and burdening teachers with an overcrowded curriculum.

The LNP will get Queensland's education system back to basics. We'll let teachers get on with the job of teaching our kids the skills they need to succeed in life.

Under our plan, we will declutter the curriculum and ensure a greater focus on language, literacy and numeracy.

And we'll reverse Labor's decision to remove English as a mandatory subject.

Build dams and secure Queensland's water supply

The Palaszczuk Government is doing nothing to drought proof Queensland.

There has not been a dam built in regional Queensland since the Paradise Dam in 2005. The Palaszczuk Government's decision to cut that dam's capacity is hurting our agricultural industry.

We have a plan to deliver water security for regional Queensland.

We'll build the Nullinga and Urannah dams and raise the Burdekin Falls Dam wall. We'll end the delays and build the Rookwood Weir.

And we will deliver a plan for the New Bradfield Scheme. The New Bradfield Scheme will create thousands of jobs, 2,000 megawatts of new renewable hydro electricity and irrigate an area larger than Tasmania.
