

Kay is an internationally recognized producer of non-fiction and educational content for film, television, online, digital media, music, and print. She has appeared on major media such as NBC, Fox News, The Epoch Times, The Australian, and Sunrise (Australia) to talk about her award-winning work as well as her personal experience of being arrested and thrown into a basement prison cell in China for human rights advocacy in 2001. This story is now told in her book, Who Are China's Walking Dead? (Liberty Hill Publishing, 2020), which features exclusive interviews with former Chinese Communist officials about the culture created by a society with no moral boundaries.

Kay's family members escaped communist regimes in Russia, China, and the former Czechoslovakia between 1918 and 1986. This, alongside her personal research and experiences of today's modern forms of communist ideology, informs much of her work, such as her latest feature documentary, Finding Courage (Swoop Films, 2020).

Born and raised in Sydney, Australia, Kay now lives in New York's Hudson Valley with her husband and two children, and hosts NTD Television's current affairs program, LIFE & TIMES.
