What are Rotary Community Corps?

What are Rotary Community Corps

A Rotary Community Corps (RCC) is a team of non-Rotarians who are flexible partners in service for Rotary clubs.

Community Solutions | Community Issues

What are Rotary Community Corps?

RCCs can implement creative and sustainable solutions to meet a wide array of needs in their community, such as illiteracy, lack of safe water, hunger, pollution, inadequate housing or vocational skill development.

Who can join a Rotary Community Corps?

Members can comprise an entire village, neighborhood, or community association that wants to work together, or a diverse group of service-minded individuals. RCCs also offer disadvantaged and underrepresented groups an opportunity to empower themselves and their community.

Goals of Rotary Community Corps

Goals of Rotary Community Corps

- Encourage individuals to take responsibility for the improvement of their community.
- Recognize the dignity and value of all useful occupations.
- Mobilize self-help activities and collective work to improve quality of life.

Organize an RCC

Role of Rotary clubs and districts

- Create awareness for the RCC program at the club and district level
- Research the need for and feasibility of establishing an RCC and identify potential RCC members
- Guide the process of forming an RCC once the club(s) has agreed to sponsor one
- Provide ongoing guidance and support to the RCC in developing its service projects
- Publicize RCC success stories (and share them with RI)
