WHAT'S YOUR PROBLEM

Phone calls prompt uncharitable thoughts

I AM sick and tired of charities' phone calls asking for money. What I would like to know is whether I can make one single donation somewhere and have that donation divided as they wish among other charities.

—B. Reposi (Trott Park)

According to the Australian Charities and Not-for-profits Commission, there is not one place where you can donate charity funds to be distributed among Australian charities, but they have provided some advice if you are feeling overwhelmed by the number of charities. The ACNC regulates Australia's 54,000 registered charities but it is not the fundraising regulator.

A Charity Register was launched in 2012 that allows people to search charities to find the ones they would like to support. It has information about each charity and can be searched using various filters, such as location and beneficiaries.

An ACNC spokesman said charities were exempt under the law from the Do Not Call Register, which is administered by the Australian Communications and Media Authority. This allows them to call the public even if they are on the register.

"If members of the public are feeling overwhelmed by phone calls and letters from charities seeking donations, the ACNC recommends that the public contact the charity directly to ask that their details be removed from its mailing and contact lists," ACNC spokesman said.

"If members of the public have further concerns about the fundraising activities of charities, they can raise these with the state fundraising regulator, which in South Australia is Consumer and Business Services."

When asking to be removed from a charity's list, provide your name, the phone number being called or where you were approached, your email or postal address if it was via email or mail, and the number of times you were contacted.

To find the contact details of the charity on the ACNC's Charity Register, head to acnc.gov.au/findacharity. For more information about registered charities and fundraising, see acnc.gov.au/fundraisingfaqs.

BUT! We know better as all funds raised to fund projects goes to the project.

Updating your Club's Executives on the District Database.

The District Database is now ready to record your Club Executives for 2017-2018 Rotary year. To do this, you can 'log in' through the District Website (www.rotary9500.org) and then select Club Executives, and by selecting the 2017–2018 tab you will be able to enter the names for your Club Executives and Officers.

This information for the main roles is automatically uploaded to the Rotary International Database. Secretary Jeff has also sent out a form for the collection of additional information for the 2017-2018 District Directory, so I ask if you can follow this through as soon as possible.

You are most welcome, in fact I encourage you to update all Club details – however if you are not sure of your login and password or editing the Club Roles, please contact our 'friendly' webmaster. webmaster@rotary9500.org

Comment of the week:

It was noted at a recent Adelaide South Rotary meeting a member made the assertion that vegetables and fruits of the type commonly available for sale at local supermarkets are not manufactured and not imported from Asia and indeed not even grown in plastic bags.

He (Yes, he) says they are grown in the ground!

No names mentioned to protect the innocent (or something like that)

Reminder that this publication requires information from you – please send me your information about your club activities.
