What is a Medical PPE Aerosol Box?

The aerosol box was created by Lai Hsien-yung (賴賢勇), an anesthesiologist with Mennonite Christian Hospital in Hualien, Taiwan.

Dr. Lai created it to help doctors who perform endotracheal intubations, The purpose is to prevent the spread of the COVID-19 by shielding the doctor performing the procedure from the respiratory droplets of the patient suffering respiratory failure.

The Aerosol Box is a transparent cube made of acrylic that covers a patient's head during endotracheal intubation, a necessary procedure for infected new coronavirus disease (COVID-19) patients who suffer respiratory failure.

It has two holes on one side through which physicians can insert their hands to perform the procedure while being shielded from the patient's respiratory droplets.

Since it's made out of acrylic, the aerosol box can be disinfected and re-used for additional patients.
