In her first 18 months, Luna underwent 2 heart surgeries and more than a dozen blood transfusions.

“I would never know who those individuals were...but to me, they are heroes.”

Luna’s mom, in gratitude to blood donors

Every 2 seconds, someone in the U.S. needs blood.

The American Red Cross connects donors and patients, shepherding each blood unit on its careful journey.

13,000 units collected daily

12 safety tests conducted

6.6 million patients reached annually

We collect 13,000 units at about 520 drives daily.

Skilled technicians then conduct at least 12 tests, including for infectious diseases, to keep the nation's blood supply safe.

Finally, blood enters our supply chain for on-demand delivery to 6.6 million patients each year.

As the nation's single largest blood supplier, we do all of this on an unparalleled scale.

The Red Cross provides about 40% of U.S. blood.

Delivering reliable, safe blood is complex and costly, but worth every penny when saving lives like Luna’s.
