Connecting One With Another

Save the Date! Our District-Sponsored Dinner to benefit The Rotary Foundation will be held on Wednesday, November 13 at Key Hall in Schenectady. Our theme is Connecting One With Another. Look for an email with your invitation!

In the expansive world of Rotary, there are many opportunities to help people improve their lives. We focus throughout the year on health, literacy, water and sanitation, and almost every other aspect of the human condition. For October, our focus is on a topic that can improve the effectiveness of our efforts in all other areas. This month, we focus on Community and Economic Development. Strong communities, and strong economic systems, allow for the alleviation of poverty and the progress of human civilization.

We are very fortunate in our little corner of the world; our communities are advanced, and rather than focus all of our efforts on meeting basic needs we instead fine tune our institutions to respond to changing times. To be certain, there are those who do struggle with basic needs. This is why we support food pantries and services such as City Mission, which help those who need a hand up.

I would like to encourage all Rotarians in our District to consider what needs in their community can be addressed by your club. We see the interconnectedness of all our efforts when we look through the eyes of the people we serve.

I am yours in Rotary Service.
District Governor Larry Jones

Middleburgh, Cobleskill and Sharon Springs
 Rotary Clubs Present

Land of the Scarecrows...
Schoharie County NY

During the month of October, the above mentioned three clubs will be featuring the collective creativity of our communities in this wonderful effort to stock the food pantries that serve the communities where we live. Three Rotarians from three clubs, backed by their membership, have set out to dress up the streets with the epitome of fall fun...SCARECROWS! Businesses, individuals, groups, clubs and teams have all been invited to participate, with a suggested entry fee of non-perishable food items. Voting takes place in different formats in each community, but those wanting to vote for "People's Choice" can cast a ballot with each food item or dollar they donate. Three different sets of bragging rights will be up for grabs! Three different communities' food pantries restocked.

They hope that you will take a drive to Schoharie County and enjoy their scarecrows.

Ballston Spa Rotary Club Presentation

Ballston Spa Rotary Club recently presented a donation to help Buddies, Blankets, and Bears recover some of the costs incurred due to a water leak at their building. Buddies, Blankets, and Bears is a local nonprofit organization whose mission is to provide comfort to people in their greatest time of need, extending a hand of friendship and compassion.

This is another way we try to help as many folks as possible.

Salem Rotary Club's Revolutionary War Cemetery Project

On September 7, Jim Carrolan of the Salem Rotary Club welcomed visitors to the Revolutionary War Cemetery in Salem. The club partnered with the Dr. Asa Fitch Historical Society's tour to celebrate the 250 Anniversary of the cemetery and to raise money for cemetery upkeep. During the last two years the Rotary Club has raised funds through a charitable trust and private citizens to clean the stones and to hire a professional conservator to repair numerous broken stones. Trained club volunteers continue to help straighten badly leaning stones. The club invites private contributions to continue refurbishing this important site. The cemetery is the oldest one in the Town of Salem and is on the National Register as an historic site. Buried within the cemetery stone walls are Salem's earliest settlers, including two soldiers of the French and Indian War, 105 Revolutionary War soldiers, and five soldiers of the War of 1812.

Rotary District 7190 is fortunate to have 11 Interact clubs. While each club runs autonomously, it can be beneficial to share ideas and connect with other clubs. Rotary clubs and Districts have the advantage of Facebook pages where members can connect, share, and collaborate.

District 7190 is pleased to announce the launch of a private Facebook group just for District 7190 Interact Clubs. The group is for school advisors and club sponsors to reach out to each other.

- Share Fundraising ideas
- Share Successful projects
- Share Student recruitment tips
- Opportunities to collaborate with other Interact Clubs, Rotary Clubs, or Youth Programs
- Ask for District Assistance – schedule Rotarian speakers, mentors, or program experts

The District and sponsor clubs are here to support the Interact Clubs. Learn about the resources available to you and tap into the Rotarians who are ready to help.

So, what now? Just click on this link to join the new Interact Rotary District 7190 private group and start connecting! Please share this link with others who would benefit from being part of this group.

Former UMass Player, Coach [and Niskayuna Rotarian] Kalekeni Banda Speaks with Teams About Work in Native Malawi

Reprinted from the Daily Hampshire Gazette

By Josh Walfish
Staff Writer

Published: 8/27/2019 9:25:24 PM

AMHERST — Kalekeni Banda was born to push the barriers of his native Malawi.

His father was a founding member of the Malawi Congress Party, which was the first ruling party after British rule ended in the country in 1964, and then served as a diplomat to the United Nations. That privilege is a main reason Banda was able to attend UMass and play soccer in the early 1970s, which turned into a prolonged coaching career that began with stops at UMass and Amherst College.

Now he's trying to share that privilege in his native country with the Chituka Village Project through his Banda Bola Sports Foundation. But in order to accomplish his missions, he's had to touch on many taboos, especially when it comes to the role of girls in traditional African societies.

"We're changing people's mindsets and breaking barriers," said Banda, who spoke with the men's and women's soccer teams at UMass on Thursday. "In 2019, we're still talking about education in areas where they don't really know what that means. They know kids need to go to school, but then to come up and say that girls can only go to school until they hit puberty and then after that, 'we're going to marry them off because we need to have more kids.'"

Banda's program is working to keep girls in school through the eighth grade and empower them to be able to speak for themselves and assert their rights as young women. There are still a fair amount of tough conversations with parents, many of whom struggle to comprehend the Western ideals that are still struggling to take hold in rural Africa.

But Banda is slowly influencing those in Malawi with the ideas of gender equality and hoping to change the future by starting with the youth in the country.

“Women are still second-class citizens as we talk today, they still look down on them,” Banda said. “It’s very difficult for me to go to a village and have a conversation with men and women about how we’re going to change their attitude. For me, going to the grassroots and changing those girls when they’re 10, that’s going to help us change the attitude when they become women and they become men. They’re going to start looking at each other different.”

Soccer is the crux of Banda’s efforts of improving education in Malawi ahead of the UN’s goal of universal education by 2030. The Banda Bola Scholastic Soccer League for Boys and Girls is a league for schools in the Nkhata Bay South District in the northern part of the country, which enforces good grades and gender equality for teams to participate.

The teams are coed at the under-10 level with three boys and three girls on each squad while above that, a school can only enter a boys team if it also enters a girls team. In order for the kids to qualify to play in the league they must attend school five days a week and achieve good grades. It has already changed the attitudes of many kids toward education, Banda said, but it is just one of two major changes that have been made.

“Soccer is not played by girls in Africa, especially in Malawi, they don’t play soccer,” Banda said. “For me to give a soccer ball to a girl and a boy is looking at me like ‘what’s up with that?’ I go ‘Well, I want her to play, too, so if you want to play, you put her on a team.’ Now the brothers and sisters are playing together and before they were sitting in separate seats and eating at separate tables, so there is none of that interaction. Soccer is now bringing them all together and they’re talking about soccer at home.”
