

Robert C. White, Jr. "Bob"

Born in Lubbock, Texas in 1947, Bob Bishop followed his father, a B-29 Commander during World War II, in a career in aviation. Bob became known as the builder of the world's smallest man carrying jet (that's according to the Guinness Book of World Records, 1991 and 2000). He was one of the nation's best known air show pilots, flying in hundreds of air shows across North America before millions of people.

During his 40 + year aviation career he has been a flight instructor, aeronautical engineer, demonstration sales pilot, national sales manager for aviation products, flight test pilot, air show pilot, cruise missile surrogate pilot and corporate president.

Bob has received over 500 hours of advanced training in human communications and personal development from facilities in the United States and Canada. He has used these skills in leading various seminars and in public speaking engagements.

In the mid-1980s, Bishop developed a personal growth seminar entitled "Quantum Abundance" focusing on the practical implications of quantum physics in creating personal reality. As a member of the Downtown Rotary Club of Eugene during this time, Bishop was selected to facilitate a course teaching capitalism to five of the first Russian business-oriented citizens allowed to leave the Soviet Union during the periods of glasnost and perestroika. The four-day course was entitled "Compassionate Capitalism." This turned out to be an extraordinary learning experience for both the students and instructor!

Bob is currently a member of the Rotary Club of Marana. He participates in the various service projects (Home in a Day) and fund-raising projects (Tour De Cookie). He serves on the club board as a member-at-large and the Rotary Club of Marana Foundation as Secretary. He is a committed donor Rotary International (a 7-year member of the Paul Harris Society) and to TRVFA. He believes in the large amount of good that vocational training provides for those in need.

He and his wife, Linda, have homes in AZ and VA and have two children with 4 grandchildren.
