

Carol Hess

Carol brings a lifelong passion for vocational education and student empowerment to her role as a TRVFA Board Member.

She began her career as a vocational agriculture and business teacher at both the high school and community college levels, where she inspired students to pursue practical, career-focused learning. She went on to develop several Regional Occupational Programs that expanded hands-on training opportunities for youth across her region.

Carol later served as a high school vice principal before founding a private learning center dedicated to students with learning difficulties and disabilities. Her center focused on personalized instruction and helping every student achieve their full potential.

Carol is proud to support TRVFA's mission of making vocational education accessible and impactful for Arizona students.
