Dr. Peter Ford

Peter Ford has been in business/practice for over 25 years. In 1997, he opened Ford's Apothecary, an independent pharmacy in Moncton, NB. Patient care is the focus of this business and he is committed to bringing you the very best professional quality and service.

Peter holds his doctorate in Pharmacy and was acclaimed internationally with the « 2001 Compounding Pharmacist of the Year » industry award. He has been the guest speaker locally, nationally and internationally, discussing topics such as, pain management, treatments for autism, bio-identical hormone replacement therapy and more. Peter is committed to giving each individual the personal attention they deserve, through his private consultations, to one-on-one chats, when you walk in the store.

Dr. Kathy Russell

Cleft palate care and research

Dr. Kathy Russell is one of many Faculty of Dentistry alumni who have returned to Dalhousie as a professor. And she's also head of the Division of Orthodontics in the Department of Dental Clinical Sciences.

After completing the Doctor of Dental Surgery (DDS) program at Dal, she did a one-year residency in paediatric dentistry at Toronto's SickKids Hospital, and then a Diploma in Orthodontics and a Master of Science (MSc) specializing in cleft lip and palate, both at the University of Toronto.

In addition to teaching and co-ordinating the orthodontic curriculum in the Faculty of Dentistry, Dr. Russell also provides patient care and teaches students at the IWK, as an orthodontist and as chair of the Cleft Palate Team. "Cleft palate care is team based," she explains. "I work with surgeons, dentists, a speech-language pathologist, and other professionals."

Dr. Russell spends Thursdays at the IWK Cleft Palate Clinic with various Dental students on their rotations. "Patients have the opportunity to see various professionals—as many as 10 in one day. The students observe the interaction, whether it's with me, the paediatric dentist, or other health-care providers," Dr. Russell explains. "The rotation gives students a much broader experience."
